

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Roosevelt is Planning Complete Control of Industrial Production

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt is already at work on what is to follow the NRA.

The program is still in the discussion stage, but its general scope and outline are definite and tangible in his mind.

It will take the form of government directed economic planning. The Administration proposes to undertake in the industrial field what it is already doing in oil and agriculture—control of production.

President Roosevelt holds that the day is past in the United States when a man, or a group of men, should be allowed a free hand in building new factories or opening new mines because they have the money, or are able to persuade investors to put up the money. Replacement of old, or obsolete, plants is not objected to—provided their complete elimination from production is assured.

An example of what the President has in mind is the shoe industry. There is enough shoe making capacity in this country to supply the foot-wear needs of most of the people of the world. As our export trade in shoes is negligible, that means that hundreds of millions invested in idle factories and machinery are wasted and lost.

It is Roosevelt's view that by gearing industrial output to domestic consumption, billions in unprofitable investments can be saved, depression and boom cycles can be eliminated, fair prices established, high wages paid, and unemployment eliminated.

Aggie Row

Several weeks ago, Dr. Clyde King, much criticized Federal Milk Administrator, secretly offered his resignation to Secretary Wallace. But the latter has not accepted it.

The reason for the resignation was the discovery that King had allowed a high official of the National Dairy Products Company to have a desk near his own office in the office in the Department of Agriculture. This was considered an unwarranted and highly dangerous concession to special privilege.

However, just as Wallace was about to accept King's resignation, George Peek, Agricultural Adjustment Administrator, stepped in. He told Wallace that King's resignation now would mean that the Department was retreating under fire.

Wallace took his advice. But now the Brain Trust is still demanding that King resign.

Fruit Basket

The NRA has been called a lot of things but Commerce Secretary Dan Roper has a designation all of his own for it.

In his soft, mellow South Carolina drawl he was expounding at length at his press conference on the work of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. The reporters fidgeted impatiently.

Finally, one of them interrupted: "Mr. Secretary, how about the NRA? When are you going to take it over?"

Roper didn't bat an eyelash. "The subject in hand," he observed pleasantly, "is the Coast and Geodetic Survey. One thing at a time. I'll come to the NRA later."

After a while he finished his lecture. "Now about the NRA," he said, changing to a brisk tone, "I have plenty to do without troubling about that for the present. I can afford to wait a while before receiving that basket of fruit."

The power company rejected the ordinance and notified users the power would be cut off unless the company's rate was paid.

Truce Called In Farm Strike Pending Result of Visit To Capitol.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 1.—With governors of four states en route to Washington today to place their farm relief program demands before President Roosevelt for action, National Farmers Holiday association leaders declared a virtual "truce" in the farm strike.

The strike in Wisconsin, focal point of the holiday movement, was called off pending action by the federal government.

Immediate "pegging" of prices for all major agricultural products and currency inflation were the principal demands made in the relief program to be submitted to the president.

CONFERENCE THURSDAY

Practically the entire program of the Farmers Holiday association won the approval of governors at the nine-state agricultural conference which closed here last night. Four governor members of the conference were dispatched to Washington to push for its adoption there. They are to confer with the president Thursday.

On the strength of the strong support promised by the governors, Arnold Gilberts, Wisconsin farm holiday president, called the strike off together at that state, and Milo Ross, national president, said picketing would be discontinued in other states.

"I am not entirely calling off the strike in other states," Reno said. "We members of the Farmers Holiday association will continue to hold our products in other states than Wisconsin and we will further strengthen our membership. If the program fails to receive the president's support, we will be in a position to renew the strike in full force and over an even broader field."

NORWALK MAN ASKED MONEY TO BACK BILL

Franklin-co Grand Jury Indicts After Hawkins Probes Lobbies

DATE IS MARCH 25

Asked $1,500 of Funeral Directors, Claim

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1.—An indictment charging solicitation of a bribe was returned here today by the Franklin-co grand jury against State Senator William H. Herzer (D) of Norwalk.

The indictment was handed down by the county grand jury in connection with its investigation into lobbying activities at recent session of the state legislature. It grew out of an alleged solicitation of the Ohio Funeral Directors' Association for $1,500 to obtain the passage by the state house of representatives of the Lofgren bill creating a new state board to license embalmers and undertakers.

READ INDICTMENT

"On or about March 25," the indictment against the state senator read, "William H. Herzer, a member of the Ohio House of Representatives, and representative of the Ohio Funeral Directors' Association, solicited the amount of $1,500 for the purpose and with the intent to influence him, said William H. Herzer, with respect to his vote and action to wit, to vote in favor of the Lofgren bill, which matter was then pending before the general assembly."

Replied to the latest letter from Gov. George White instructing him to cooperate with the local grand jury probe, Attorney General John W. Bricker said he would gladly comply with the governor's suggestion.

"Of course," he explained, "this office has no evidence bearing upon this matter; the only information which I have being contained in the governor's letter and in the recent newspaper."

READY TO APPEAR

"I am ready to appear before the grand jury to present any evidence which the governor or the prosecuting attorney believes should be made by me rather than by the prosecuting attorney."

Bricker previously had suggested that if the governor desired a statewide investigation of the lobbyists, he should empower the attorney general to call his own grand jury for that purpose.

One of the cases to be submitted during the afternoon was the appeal on error of Newell McNeal, Williamsport, from his conviction in common pleas court on a statutory charge. A strenuous argument was expected to be made by his attorneys, Tom A. Renick and C. A. Weldon. A number of errors had been charged in the trial in which McNeal was convicted.

Only one other case was pending for the afternoon session that being Edison and Vernon Shellhammer against Ben H. Gordon, defendant in error.

OTHERS SUBMITTED

The cases submitted during the morning session included that of George G. Adkins, as surviving administrator of the estate of Ella Renick, deceased, against the Second National Bank. The bank was to be represented by Charles Dresbach but since the former judge is ill the bank's defense was presented by brief. An amount of about $6,000 is involved.

Another was the Webster Manufacturing Co., plaintiff in error, against the Scioto Grain Co., defendant in error. C. A. Leist was the former's counsel and Charles Gerhardt the defendant's.

The action of Ethel Toole, plaintiff in error, against Ralph S. Hosler was also submitted to the court. F. R. Henderson is the plaintiff's attorney and F. R. Hoover the defendant's.

The Sidner Ward will construction case entitled Katherine Ridgour, plaintiff in error, against John Green and others was placed in the hands of the court. M. L. Bigger representing Katherine Ridgour and Charles Gerhardt and George W. Morrison representing Green.

TO RETURN FINDINGS

The judges will not announce any of their decisions from the bench but will return their findings to the clerk of courts after they have deliberated upon the cases.

Village, Utility In Rate Battle

Lithopolis Mayor Asks That Power Company Be Denied Rite to Stop Service.

The contest of Lithopolis electric power users and the Midland Light and Power Co., today, had been carried to Fairfield-co common pleas court with a temporary injunction granted to prevent the utility from discontinuing service to a number of the village residences and business places as a result of the fight.

The utility planned to discontinue service on Nov. 2 to a number of users because they refused to pay the rate the company asked for power. On April 7 the Lithopolis village council passed an ordinance to regulate the electric rate in the village cutting the first 25 kilowatts to six cents each. The power company rejected the ordinance and notified users the power would be cut off unless the company's rate was paid.

The restraining order was asked by Mayor Rollo Kistler.

GOVERNORS TO ASK U. S. AID

Truce Called In Farm Strike Pending Result of Visit To Capitol.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 1. — With governors of four states enroute to Washington today to place their farm relief program demands before President Roosevelt for action, National Farmers Holiday association leaders declared a virtual "truce" in the farm strike.

The strike in Wisconsin, focal point of the holiday movement, was called off pending action by the federal government.

Immediate "pegging" of prices for all major agricultural products and currency inflation were the principal demands made in the relief program to be submitted to the president.

CONFEE THURSDAY

Practically the entire program of the Farmers Holiday association won the approval of governors at the nine-state agricultural conference which closed here last night. Four governor members of the conference were dispatched to Washington to push for its adoption there. They are to confer with the president, Thursday.

On the strength of the strong support promised by the governors, Arnold Gilberts, Wisconsin farm holiday president, called the strike off altogether in that state, and Milo Reno, national president, said picketing would be discontinued in other states.

"I am not entirely calling off the strike in other states," Reno said. "We members of the Farmers Holiday association will continue to hold our products in other states than Wisconsin and we will further strengthen our membership. If the program fails to receive the president's support, we will be in a position to renew the strike in full force and over an even broader field."

NRA BUSINESS MEN ROTATING

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. — NRA officials cleared up today some of the confusion surrounding the announcement that five business leaders were withdrawing from the national business and industrial advisory council.

Moffett, former vice president of the same company; Austin Finch of North Carolina; and John B. Elliott of the Standard Oil of California—were not "resigning" but taking leaves of absence in the operation of a rotation plan.

There are 49 members of the board, and some members have been anxious to devote more time to their own business.

NORWALK MAN ASKED MONEY TO BACK BILL

Franklin-co Grand Jury Indicts After Hoskins Probes Lobbies

DATE IS MARCH 25

Asked $1,500 of Funeral Directors, Claim

COLUMBUS, Nov. 1. — An indictment charging solicitation of a bribe was returned here today by the Franklin-co grand jury against State Senator William H. Herner (D) of Norwalk.

The indictment was handed down by the county grand jury in connection with its investigation into lobbying activities at recent session of the state legislature. It grew out of an alleged solicitation of the Ohio Funeral Directors' Association for $1,500 to obtain the passage by the state house of representatives of the Lefever bill creating a new state board to license embalmers and undertakers.

READ INDICTMENT

"On or about March 25," the indictment against the state senator read, "William H. Herner unlawfully and corruptly did solicit from Burch D. E. Arthur, as president and representative of the Ohio funeral directors association money to the amount of $1,500 for the purpose and with the intent to influence him, said William H. Herner, with respect to his official duty and action to wit, opinion and judgment in a matter that might legally come before him, said William H. Herner, as a member of the general assembly, the matter of amended senate bill No. 99 entitled a bill to create a board of embalmers and funeral directors of Ohio, which matter was then pending before the general assembly."

Replying to the latest letter from Gov. George White instructing him to cooperate with the local grand jury probe, Attorney General John W. Bricker said he would gladly comply with the governor's suggestion.

"Of course," he explained, "this office has no evidence bearing upon this matter; the only information which I have being contained in the governor's letter and in the recent newspapers."

READY TO APPEAR

"I am ready to appear before the prosecuting attorney's grand jury to present any evidence which the governor or the prosecuting attorney believes should be handled by me rather than by the prosecuting attorney."

Bricker previously had suggested that if the governor desired a statewide investigation of the lobbyists, he should empower the attorney general to call his own grand jury for that purpose.

Anniversary of An Idea

AMONG this week's anniversaries is the forty-second of the founding of the first correspondence school in the United States. Since the International Correspondence Schools at Scranton, Pa., first sent out courses by mail two score and two years ago, hundreds of similar schools have been instituted and millions of men and women have continued or completed their education by mail.

The Scranton institution has enrolled more than 4,000,000 students in that time, a small fraction of the total number for whom Uncle Sam has carried school books. For every man, woman and child in the United States today there has been a correspondence school student if the less elaborate courses offered are included in the calculations.

Millions have prepared for the law, engineering, sciences, teaching and other professions with the help of the correspondence course, and even more millions have taken that road to such fascinating careers as acting, scenario writing, aviation, music and radio announcing.

The phenomenal success of the early and worthy schools attracted to the field many Get-Rich-Quick Wallingfords, but it is to the credit of the American people that the racket schools quickly perish while the meritorious schools grow and prosper.

Correspondence schools have made a real contribution to universal literacy and were making a higher education possible for the poor long before the colleges and universities were easily accessible to them. The correspondence courses and extension and night schools of the large universities and colleges are an acknowledgment by the leading educators of the value of the correspondence school and a recognition of correspondence school competition.

Despite numerous disillusionments, Americans believe as firmly as ever in Santa Claus.

It Has No Competition

IT casts no discredit on other types of investment to say that a life insurance policy is the safest haven for savings.

Most investments contain elements of risk. Under favorable conditions, they return good profits. Under unfavorable conditions profits often dwindle or disappear.

Life insurance is a different matter. Primarily it is for security—secondarily for reasonable earnings varying with the type of policy. It is a means of creating an estate, of protecting dependents, or guarding against the misfortunes of the future—not a means of speculation. It is an investment for persons who do not want to take chances—who must make sure that their savings are safe.

In these days, a life insurance policy is often the only thing of real value in once-sizeable estates. Life insurance is being used to build up estates which have been depleted by depression. In functions such as these, it reigns supreme—an investment with a competitor.

Being afraid to live is often called prudence.

We knew it would happen. Now nobody can think up a new dance naughty enough to be popular.

If she's 50 and a gossip, she is just trying to get a vicarious kick out of sin.

THAT'S MY BOY!

by FRANCIS WALLACE
AUTHOR OF "HUDDLE"

SYNOPSIS

"Big Jeff" Randolph, now in his second year on the Thorndyke varsity and one of the nation's greatest football stars, has had a brilliant grid career ever since his high school days in little Athens, a mid-west factory town, where Mom and Pop and the rest of the family are now listening over the radio to the game between their boy's great eastern university and Indiana State. "Big Jeff" is just Tommy back home which he visits on vacations and starts with his social-sartorial splendor. He's gone somewhat high-hat with the seal of Thorndyke upon him and has drifted away from Dorothy Whitney, daughter of the richest man in Athens—the owner of the glass-works in which his Pop labors. . . . Thorndyke is leading, 7-0, thanks to a touchdown pass by "Big Jeff," as the game goes into its latter half with Charlie Whitney, Athens tycoon; his daughter, Dorothy; and her escort, Jerry Randall, in the huge throng packing the Stadium.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

The late afternoon chill was upon the crowd in the Stadium. Jerry Randall offered his flask to Dorothy; she declined; but Charlie Whitney accepted and then Jerry had his drink. He smiled at the girl: "You women amaze me. Look at Elaine Winthrop down there."

Dorothy nodded. She had been noting the young woman in the short leopard jacket; for reasons different than Jerry's.

"That little jacket—and her legs out like a couple of orphans. Freddy's sitting there wrapped up in a bearskin coat and pickled in gin but she hasn't had a drink yet."

"Perhaps she doesn't like it," Dorothy said.

"Don't fool yourself. She's a deep well, that lady, and there's nothing she doesn't like."

"Who is she?"

"Plenty. Back Bay, Park Avenue, plays around with art—the kind of social register which tinkles Broadway columns."

Jerry wasn't usually so informative but he had had many drinks to help him keep warm. Elaine Winthrop had come through for Dorothy's estimate. Those legs Jerry had noticed were twin bits of shapely slim bamboo; every touch of her revealed the artist.

"Come on, Jeff, do something," Jerry complained.

A note in his voice caught Dorothy's attention. It hadn't been an inspiring game; after the first sudden touchdown the Indiana team had changed its defensive tactics, switched them smartly according to Charlie Whitney—and Dorothy knew her father had a good knowledge of football. He answered now: "It's a tough game, Jerry. Those boys from home are getting better as they go—and I imagine they're giving Tom a good rough afternoon unless I'm mistaken."

"A hero is supposed to be heroic," Jerry maintained, "that's what he's here for."

His voice and his manner were annoying. Dorothy hadn't been greatly excited about the game. Normally she would have wanted Indiana to win but Thorndyke was Jerry's school and because Tommy Whitney's chief passion of the football season. Dorothy had had no keen interest either way.

"Jerry—that's unfair," Dorothy objected.

He turned to her, a slow smile on his cheeky face; his eyes were a trifle uncertain. "Come on, Dot—why kid ourselves?"

Charlie Whitney was warning her. Dorothy did not answer.

Indiana had been stubborn, defensively, but inept on the offense. Now the Thorndyke line seemed to sag suddenly, to grow limp. Red jerseys began to pour through—and behind them came Carlton, the Hoosier fullback, bowling his way, head to his knees and the ball buried somewhere within the cavern of his short arms and belly.

They crossed midfield—a short pass made first down on the Thorndyke 37-yard line.

"Well!" Charlie Whitney said.

The stands were alive to the situation, sensing one of those sudden cracks of good teams. Indiana shouted for its men to come on for a tie and a moral victory; Thorndyke implored: "Hold that line! Hold that line! Take it away! Take it away! Stop Carlton! Stop Carlton!"

Cold shadows were upon the field but the men of Indiana hopped and charged into position with the fire of reprieve—the quick, buoyant spring of unexpected release. They had a fighting chance and were taking it. They encouraged each other. Carlton was surrounded by his happy teammates after each charge; and each time, after surrendering the ball to the referee, he jumped back to his position, his fist in the air, beating the air with staccato jerks.

"He's marvellous," Dorothy whispered.

Thorndyke dug in desperately each time the crimson wave hurled it back. Fresh men ran out from the Pilgrim bench, fresh men with clean uniforms, dancing step, fire and determination. They were met by Tom Randolph after they reported to the referee; he pushed them into position; pounded their backs; shouted at them.

Tom was backing up the line, roving from side to side, trying to diagnose the plays; he was in every play but the crimson march went on.

"What's the matter with him?" Jerry demanded. "Why don't he get in there?"

There was a touch of sharpness in Charlie Whitney's answer. "They're sending two men on Tom—riding him out of the play; they've been doing it all day; they're stopping most of them as it is—but he never gets a clean shot at National education week should recall to our minds the world war as it is always near Armistice Day. Education makes Democracy possible and we entered the world war to make the world safe for Democracy.

A WALK I SHOULD LIKE TO TAKE

One of the most enjoyable walks to me is through the woods on a bright autumnal day. The dry leaves crumble under our feet while other leaves float down like telegrams from high places telling us summer is over. The birds flit to and fro, and are happily singing while a jack rabbit darts across our path and scares us as much as we scare him. Bright red berries hang from bushes and the bitter sweet bursting open its pods and all nature is clothed in a robe of yellow and gold.

This paragraph was written by Elizabeth Good a seventh grade pupil.

Be careful about what you start while trying to stop something.

Too many players take their bridge as though it were a game or pastime.

JACKSON-TWP SCHOOL NEWS

The attendance banner is now in the possession of the fifth grade. The attendance for this grade has been perfect for the past two weeks.

Mary Jane Rader won a place on the sixth grade honor roll for the first six-week term of school. Mary Jane's name was unintentionally omitted from the honor roll which was published last week.

Monthly attendance averages for the second month of school are as follows:

Grade 1, 92 per cent.
Grade 2, 90.1 per cent.
Grade 3, 96 per cent.
Grade 4, 93.2 per cent.
Grade 5, 93 per cent.
Grade 6, 93 per cent.

Grade 7, 90 per cent.
Grade 8, 90 per cent.
High school, 92 per cent.

One hundred thirty-five pupils were neither absent nor tardy during the school month of the school year.

The high school bank reopened for business last week. It is hoped that a great many students will take advantage of this opportunity and boost the bank.

The purpose is to establish habits of thrift and financial independence.

The students into whose hands the management has been entrusted are as follows: Edgar Anderson, president; Ursel Cardiff, vice-president; Gene Back, secretary; Walter Arledge, treasurer; Robert Holtzman, Nelson Walters, auditor.

The middle class is the one that has brains enough to be ashamed of national policies it hasn't the power to change.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA
Warren William and Joan Blondell make as fine a screen team as is to be found in motion pictures. They have been paired together three times in the last few months, and Warner Bros.-First National is planning to keep them together in future productions because of their excellent teamwork.

William is more than six feet tall and dark haired and complexioned while Joan, a fairly tall girl, who comes just above his shoulder, is a decided blonde. The contrast makes an excellent physical match. Mentally Joan is quick witted and inclined to wisecrack, while William is ponderous and dignified. Again the contrast is excellent, each acting as a foil to the other.

The latest picture in which the two are paired is "Goodbye Again," a First National comedy drama which opens tonight at the Cliftona. The first time they appeared together was in "Three on a Match."

He gets a great kick out of these gentle burlesques, exaggerations and, in some cases, hilarious take-offs on particular idiosyncrasies of some of his pet uncles and cousins, while he delights in bringing before audiences some of their most human traits and lovable characteristics.

longer included in the wardrobe of the young child. I am sure all will agree health and comfort have been promoted by the change. The old petticoats were so long and cumbersome that they disturbed the baby's sleep and were uncomfortable all the time.

Use of a "Band"

There are items of clothing that some young mothers continue to use in spite of changed ideas. Perhaps that is due to grandmother's influence. Certainly tradition is an important factor. One such is the "band" worn after the navel is healed.

I receive many inquiries about this old-fashioned piece of clothing. Many a mother writes that she has been advised to discontinue the use of a "band" but fears the child will develop a "rupture," or "catch cold in his bowels."

Let me assure the young mother that a tight band around the baby's abdomen is not needed. It is not a necessary protection against colds. Once the navel is healed, no dressing around the abdomen is required. Indeed, a tight band is more harmful than beneficial.

Keep Child's Feet Warm

Perhaps the greatest mistake made by most mothers is that they over-dress their children. Bear in mind that during the winter months blankets and warm coats are more essential than heavy floored underwear or two and three under shirts. The clothes next to the body should be loose and light, permitting ample ventilation of the skin.

If the child's feet are cold, do not rely alone upon socks or "bootees." Additional blankets are needed and if necessary the baby's feet can be warmed by the use of a small hot water bag. Bear in mind that persistent coldness of the feet is a sign of some general condition. I should suspect lowered vitality from some cause.

Hats and caps should preferably be of linen. Flannel or knitted woolen caps appear warmer, but they irritate the child and cause excessive perspiration. This may lead to skin disturbance. If a linen hat is not warm enough, line a flannel or woolen hat with linen. This prevents irritation of the delicate skin of the child.

It is a great mistake to burden the young infant with unnecessary clothing. The young mother can save exertion and labor by purchasing only the essential clothes. Plenty of blankets of different weight and thickness must be included among the essentials.

THAT'S MY BOY!

by FRANCIS WALLACE
AUTHOR OF "HUDDLE"

SYNOPSIS

"Big Jeff" Randolph, now in his second year on the Thorndyke varsity and one of the nation's greatest football stars, has had a brilliant grid career ever since his high school days in little Athens, a mid-west factory town, where Mom and Pop and the rest of the family are now listening over the radio to the game between their boy's great eastern university and Indiana State. "Big Jeff" is just Tommy back home which he visits on vacations and starts with his social-sartorial splendor. He's gone somewhat high-hat with the seal of Thorndyke upon him and has drifted away from Dorothy Whitney, daughter of the richest man in Athens—the owner of the glass-works in which his Pop labors. . . . Thorndyke is leading, 7-0, thanks to a touchdown pass by "Big Jeff", as the game goes into its latter half with Charlie Whitney, Athens tycoon; his daughter, Dorothy; and her escort, Jerry Randall, in the huddle through packing the Stadium.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

The late afternoon chill was upon the crowd in the Stadium. Jerry Randall offered his flask to Dorothy; she declined; but Charlie Whitney accepted and then Jerry had his drink. He smiled at the girl: "You women amaze me. Look at Elaine Winthrop down there."

Dorothy nodded. She had been noting the young woman in the short leopard jacket; for reasons different than Jerry's.

"That little jacket—and her legs look like a couple of orphans. Reddy's sitting there wrapped up in a bearskin coat and pickled in gin but she hasn't a drink yet."

"Perhaps she doesn't like it," Dorothy said.

"Don't fool yourself. She's a deep well, that lady, and there's nothing she doesn't like."

"Who is she?"

"Phlo. Back Bay, Park Avenue, plays around with art—the kind of social register which tinkles Broadway columns."

Jerry wasn't usually so informative but he had had many drinks to help him keep warm. Elaine Winthrop had come through for Dorothy's estimate. Those legs Jerry had noticed were twin bits of shapely slim bamboo; every touch of her revealed the artist.

"Come on, Jeff, do something," Jerry complained.

A note in his voice caught Dorothy's attention. It hadn't been an inspiring game; after the first sudden touchdown the Indiana team had changed its defensive tactics, switched them smartly according to Charlie Whitney—and Dorothy knew her father had a good knowledge of football. He answered now:

"It's a tough game, Jerry. Those boys from home are getting better as they go—and I imagine they're giving Tom a good rough afternoon unless I'm mistaken."

"A hero is supposed to be heroic," Jerry maintained, "that's what he's here for."

His voice and his manner were annoying. Dorothy hadn't been greatly excited about the game. Normally she would have wanted Indiana to win but Thorndyke was Jerry's school and because Tommy played there it had become Charlie Whitney's chief passion of the football season. Dorothy had had no keen interest either way.

"Jerry—that's unfair," Dorothy objected.

He turned to her, a slow smile on his cheery face; his eyes were a trifle uncertain. "Come on, Dorothy, why did you say that?"

Charlie Whitney was warning her. Dorothy did not answer.

Indiana had been stubborn, defensively, but inept on the offense. Now the Thorndyke line seemed to sag suddenly, to grow limp. Red jerseys began to pour through—and behind them came Carlton, the Hoosier fullback, bowling his way, head to his knees and the ball buried somewhere within the cavern of his short arms and belly.

They crossed, mid-field—a short pass made first down on the Thorndyke 37-yard line.

"Well!" Charlie Whitney said. The stands were alive to the situation, sensing one of those sudden crackups of good teams. Indiana shouted for its men to come on for a tie and a moral victory; Thorndyke implored: "Hold that line! Hold that line! Take it away! Take it away! Stop Carlton! Stop Carlton!"

Cold shadows were upon the field but the men of Indiana hopped and charged into position with the fire of reprieve—the quick, buoyant spring of unexpected release. They had a fighting chance and were taking it. They encouraged each other. Carlton was surrounded by his happy teammates after each charge; and each time, after surrendering the ball to the referee, he jumped back to his position, his fist in the air, beating the air with staccato jerks.

"He's marvellous," Dorothy whispered.

Thorndyke dug in desperately each time the crimson wave hurled it back. Fresh men ran out with the Pilgrim bench, fresh men with clean uniforms, dancing step, fire and determination. They were met by Tom Randolph after they reported to the referee; pounded their backs; shouted at them.

Tom was backing up the line, roving from side to side, trying to diagnose the plays; he was in every play but the crimson march went on.

"What's the matter with him?" Jerry demanded. "Why don't he get in there?"

There was a touch of sharpness in Charlie Whitney's answer. "They're sending two men on Tom—riding him out of the play; they've been doing it all day; he's stopping most of them as it is—but he never gets a clean shot at Carlton; it's always from the side or behind."

The ball was on the 23-yard line. Dorothy looked at the clock. About eight minutes to play. Plenty of time.

"Come on, Tom!" It came out unbidden. Charlie Whitney nodded. Dorothy knew, then, which side she really favored. She wanted Tom Randolph to win. He was tired; he was trying hard; and he was playing against odds.

"We've got to stop Carlton!" Charlie Whitney said, desperate as though his fortune depended upon stopping Carlton. "If Tom could only get a shot at him—they've been smart with their plays. Out-guess them Tom—"

Charlie was talking to Tom Randolph as though he were his own son.

The ball was on the 18-yard line. A wide hole opened in the Pilgrim line; so wide that Carlton came through without being touched—a weak side-play; a last prize play which depended so much on its deception that Carlton was sent through without interference while his usual blockers went off as decoys.

"Attabo Tom!" Charlie Whitney was up, shouting, waving his hat. Dorothy was up. The entire stadium crowd was up. It had happened so quickly they had not been prepared.

Tom had outguessed them—perhaps it was a mere accident that he was out there—but when Carlton had burst through the line at top speed, Tom was directly in his path, coming forward to meet him. He left his feet with tremendous drive and whistled forward.

The impact was heard in the stands. Tom's shoulder banged into Carlton's lowered torso. Carlton was stopped cold. The ball fell from his arms. Players from both teams scrambled for it. The white-clad referee dove among them, came up quickly and threw his arm energetically, pointing to the Indiana goal.

Thorndyke's ball! The Pilgrim crowd shouted in delirious relief; the Hoosier groan was barely audible.

Then there was silence.

In music, the Grammar Grades are studying World War Songs in connection with Armistice Day.

Three new pupils entered the first and second grades last week. Ira Barr entered the second grade, coming from Circleville; Kathryn Diltz entered the second grade; and Russell Sowers entered the first.

The first and second grades were entertained to a Halloween party, last Thursday afternoon, sponsored by the third and fourth grades. After the program refreshments were served and a good time was enjoyed by all.

The honor roll of the second grade are: Charles McCoy, Juanita Hamilton, and Harry Richards.

The honor roll of the fifth grade are: Margaret Goode, Phyllis Reichelderfer and Willard Speakman. Of the sixth grade: Fern Richards, Paul Bowers, Mary Olive Leist, Pat Mogan, and Esther Mae Mace.

The boys and girls of the fifth and sixth grades are making salt and flour maps of South America in connection with their study of its geography.

Junior Barry entered the fifth grade coming from Circleville.

The attendance of the fifth and sixth grades for this month was 98 per cent.

The high school is getting ready for National Education week.

The Washington-Twp P. T. A. will hold their meeting, Friday evening of Nov. 3rd. Mr. A. A. White will show pictures and give a talk on his trip through the west. Everybody is invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Kraft and daughters, Kathryn and Evelyn, and Miss Doris Kraft visited relatives in Fiedlaw, over the week-end.

Miss Erma Valentine spent the week-end in Cleveland.

David Adams spent the week-end in Athens, Ohio, where he attended the Ohio-Transylvania football game.

Robert Rarey in the fourth grade has been absent almost 4 weeks due to a broken arm. It is expected that he will return to school within the next few days.

Children entering school last week were Russell and Wilbur Sowers from Walnut and Elmer and Ira Barr from Circleville. Also Margaret and Kathryn Diltz from Circleville.

The following pupils have withdrawn from school during the last two weeks: Harriet Bush, Pearl, Betty Jane Bush, Ora Belle Bush, and Opal and Pauline Phillips.

Honor roll for third grade: Robert Klingensmith.

Fourth grade: Paul Brobst, John Mogan, Alice Cantor, Alma Reser, Dorothy Schreck and Elma Ruth Bowers.

Arthur Marshall and Emmett Traver visited the first settlement in Ohio at New Philadelphia Sunday.

The Washington-Twp school is planning a program for Friday night, Nov. 10. The program will be largely musical. We would like to have our auditorium filled with parents of the community. National education week should recall to our minds the world war as it is always near Armistice Day. Education makes Democracy possible.

and we entered the world war to make the world safe for Democracy.

A WALK I SHOULD LIKE TO TAKE

One of the most enjoyable walks to me is through the woods on a bright autumnal day. The dry leaves crumble under our feet while other leaves float down like telegrams from high places.

Telling us summer is over. The birds flit to and fro, and are happily singing while a jack rabbit darts across our path and scares us as much as we scare him. Bright red berries hang from bushes and the bitter sweet bursting open its pods and all nature is clothed in a robe of yellow and gold.

This paragraph was written by Elizabeth Good a seventh grade pupil.

Be careful about what you start while trying to stop something.

The attendance banner is now in the possession of the fifth grade. The attendance for this grade has been perfect for the past two weeks.

Mary Jane Rader won a place on the sixth grade honor roll for the first six-week term of school.

Mary Jane's name was unintentionally omitted from the honor roll which was published last week.

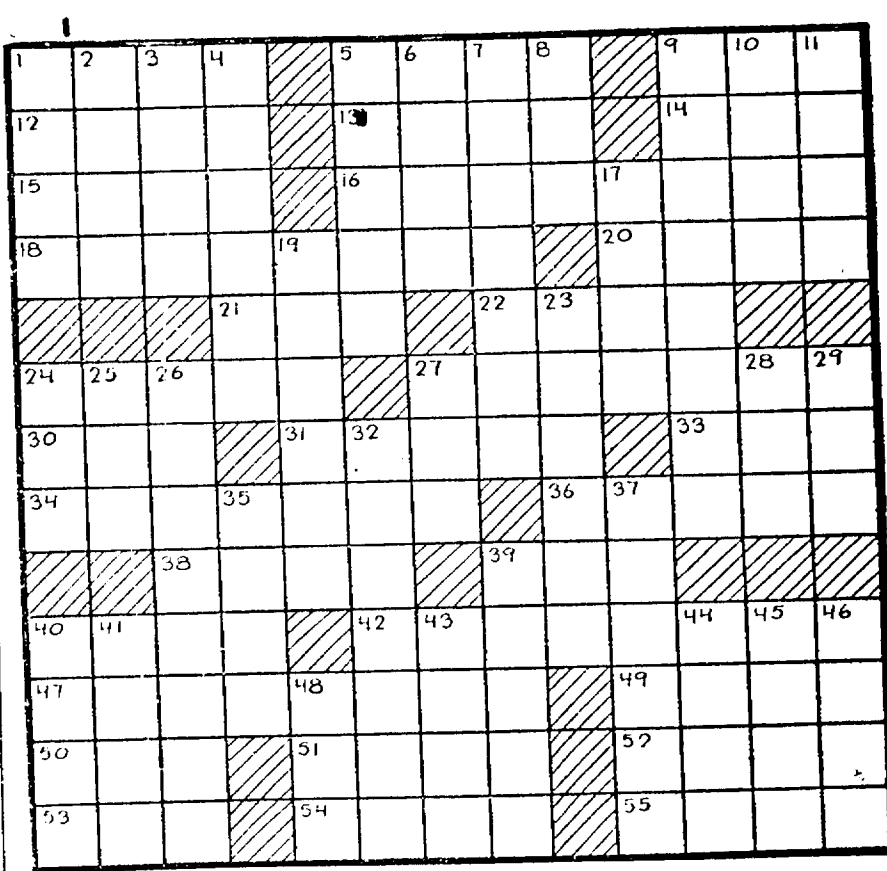

Monthly attendance averages for the second month of school are as follows:

Grade 1, 92 per cent.
Grade 2, 90.1 per cent.
Grade 3, 96 per cent.
Grade 4, 93.2 per cent.
Grade 5, 93 per cent.
Grade 6, 93 per cent.

Anniversary of An Idea

AMONG this week's anniversaries is the forty-second of the founding of the first correspondence school in the United States. Since the International Correspondence Schools at Scranton, Pa., first sent out courses by mail two score and two years ago, hundreds of similar schools have been instituted and millions of men and women have continued or completed their education by mail.

The Scranton institution has enrolled more than 4,000,000 students in that time, a small fraction of the total number for whom Uncle Sam has carried school books. For every man, woman and child in the United States today there has been a correspondence school student if the less elaborate courses offered are included in the calculations.

Millions have prepared for the law, engineering, sciences, teaching and other professions with the help of the correspondence course. And even more millions have taken that road to such fascinating careers as acting, scenario writing, aviation, music and radio announcing.

The phenomenal success of the early and worthy schools attracted to the field many Get-Rich-Quick Wallingfords, but it is to the credit of the American people that the racket schools quickly perish while the meritorious schools grow and prosper.

Correspondence schools have made a real contribution to universal literacy and were making a higher education possible for the poor long before the colleges and universities were easily accessible to them. The correspondence courses and extension and night schools of the large universities and colleges are an acknowledgment by the leading educators of the value of the correspondence school and a recognition of correspondence school competition.

Despite numerous disillusionments, Americans believe as firmly as ever in Santa Claus.

It Has No Competition

It casts no discredit on other types of investment to say that a life insurance policy is the safest haven for savings.

Most investments contain elements of risk. Under favorable conditions, they return good profits. Under unfavorable conditions profits often dwindle or disappear.

Life insurance is a different matter. Primarily it is for security—secondarily for reasonable earnings varying with the type of policy. It is a means of creating an estate, of protecting dependents, or guarding against the misfortunes of the future—not a means of speculation. It is an investment for persons who do not want to take chances—who must make sure that their savings are safe.

In these days, a life insurance policy is often the only thing of real value in once-sizeable estates. Life insurance is being used to build up estates which have been depleted by depression. In functions such as these, it reigns supreme—an investment with a competitor.

Being afraid to live is often called prudence.

We knew it would happen. Now nobody can think up a new dance naughty enough to be popular.

If she's 50 and a gossip, she is just trying to get a vicarious kick out of sin.

AT THE CLIFTONA
Warner William and Joan Blondell make as fine a screen team as to be found in motion pictures. They have been paired together three times in the last few months, and Warner Bros.-First National is planning to keep them together in future productions because of their excellent teamwork.

William is more than six feet tall and dark haired and complexioned while Joan, a fairly tall girl, who comes just above his shoulder, is a decided blonde. The contrast makes an excellent physical match. Mentally Joan is quick witted and inclined to wisecrack, while William is ponderous and dignified. Again the contrast is excellent, each acting as a foil to the other.

The latest picture in which the two are paired is "Goodbye Again," a First National comedy drama, which opens tonight at the Clifftory. The first time they appeared together was in "Three on a Match."

Dr. Copeland

"STYLE" MEANS everything to us and each season shows marked changes in clothes. To gaze at pictures taken but a few years ago causes us to smile over the "old fashions". Surprising as it may seem Dame Fashion influences even the wardrobe of the new-born babe. I need only remind you of the now discarded long petticoats or "Gertie-trades" as they were commonly called. This garment, popular while ago, is no longer included in the wardrobe of the young child. I am sure all will agree health and comfort have been promoted by the change. The old petticoats were so long and cumbersome that they disturbed the baby's sleep and were uncomfortable all the time.

Use of a "Band"

There are items of clothing that young mothers continue to use in spite of changed ideas. Perhaps the one that is due to grandmother's influence. Certainly tradition is an important factor. One such is the "band" worn after the navel is healed.

I receive many inquiries about this old-fashioned piece of clothing. Many a mother writes that she has been advised to discontinue the use of a "band" but fears the child will develop a "rupture" or "teach cold in his bowels."

Let me assure the young mother that a tight band around the baby's abdomen is not needed; it is not a necessary protection against colds. Once the navel is healed, no dressing around the abdomen is required. Indeed, a tight band is more harmful than beneficial.

Keep Child's Feet Warm

that during the winter months blankets and warm coats are more essential than heavy fleeced underwear or two or three under shirts. The clothes next to the body should be loose and light, permitting ample ventilation of the skin.

If the child's feet are cold, do not rely alone upon socks or "booties." Additional blankets are needed and if necessary the baby's feet can be warmed by the use of a small hot water bag. Bear in mind that persistent coldness of the feet is a sign of some general condition. I should suspect lowered vitality from some cause.

Hats and caps should preferably be of linen. Flannel or knitted woolen caps appear warmer, but they irritate the child and cause excessive perspiration. This may lead to some skin disturbance. If a linen hat is not warm enough, line a flannel or woolen hat with linen. This prevents irritation of the delicate skin of the child.

It is a great mistake to burden the young infant with unnecessary clothing. The young mother can save expense and labor by purchasing only the essential clothes. Plenty of blankets of different weight and thickness must be included among the essentials.

to farmers aggregating $19,357,606, or more than a million dollars per working day, and figures for the twelve Federal Land Banks which have just been released show that the Louisville Bank is approving loans more rapidly than any other Bank in the system, according to announcement made today by Ernest Rice, President of the bank. Approvals for the first twenty days of October included $3,543,200, to the farmers of Tennessee, $6,960,600 to Kentucky farmers, $3,285,000, to Indiana, and $3,377,800 to Ohio.

A remarkable speeding up in loaning operations by the Louisville Bank is illustrated by the fact that more loans were approved in the first twenty days of October, than during the previous nine months of 1933. Loans approved for the year of 1933, to October 20, totaled $29,691,700, and were made to 15,930 farmers in Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio. Counting seven days a week and twenty-four hours per day, the Louisville Bank approved a loan each three and six-tenths minutes during the first twenty days of October.

The first run of cider is made in Virginia in September, but the largest production comes in October. The best cider apples are Black Twig, York and Ben Davis. consin; Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota; and William Langer, of North Dakota, were delegated to seek President Roosevelt's acceptance of the farm holiday program as slightly modified by the conference.

LIST 6 POINTS

The relief program as it is to be put up to the president provides, in its major points:

1. That agriculture be put under an NRA code which would authorize fixing of minimum prices equal to cost of production plus a reasonable profit. Administrators of the code also would determine the amount of the several basic agricultural products to be sold on the domestic market. The administrators would be farmers, the government and consumers.

2. That, pending adoption of the code the government arbitrarily fix minimum prices at which farm commodities could be sold on the domestic market, the prices to allow for a reasonable profit above cost of production. Authority to do this, the conference declared, already is in the hands of the president under the agriculture adjustment act.

3. That currency be immediately inflated and that the fourth liberty loan be paid in new currency rather than being retired by another interest-bearing bond issue.

4. That government refinancing of farm loans be liberalized by higher appraisals and that interest on government refinancing loans be reduced.

5. That both the President and the Governors of the several states do everything in their power to defer further foreclosure of mortgages and evictions until farmers have had a reasonable opportunity to avail themselves of the credit facilities already offered by the government.

6. That the President declare an embargo on foreign grains, oils, fats, and other agricultural products competing with American products until reciprocal trade agreements are completed with foreign countries.

Wants Million For Health Lost in Jungle

Charging that her health and career were ruined as the result of negligence on the part of its agents, Edwina Booth, "White Goddess" of the film "Trader Horn," is suing the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation for $1,000,000 damages. The actress asserts that while enroute to Africa she was compelled to expose her almost nude body to scorching tropic sun to acquire the coating of sun tan in keeping with her role of wild jungle girl. And during the actual filming of the picture was directed to run through sharp jungle weeds and grasses that inflicted painful injuries on her bare flesh. Since her return from Africa, Miss Booth has suffered from a mysterious tropical disease that, so far, has baffled Western medical science.

In U. S.-Soviet Recognition Negotiations

The selection by President Mikhail Kalinin of Maxim Litvinoff, Commissar of Foreign Affairs, to represent the Soviet Government in the forthcoming negotiations with President Roosevelt at Washington, is said by capital observers to make recognition of the Soviet by the United States virtually certain. Litvinoff is said to be a man after Roosevelt's own heart, one who disdains high-flown phraseology in favor of blunt commonsense speaking. A big figure in Soviet affairs since 1917, Litvinoff is known to be closer to Josef Stalin, Russia's "strong man" than any other. It is felt that his efforts will open the door of the Russian Embassy in Washington, which has been officially closed for 15 years.

Baby Stars Must Not Neglect Education

How baby movie stars are protected against overwork was revealed recently by the action of Miss Rachael Smith, teacher and Child Welfare representative in the film colony. Charging she spent too much time before the cameras and not enough in school, Miss Smith reported Maria Sieber, 8-year-old daughter of Marlene Dietrich, to the California State Board of Education. As a consequence Maria may be barred from further film work. Other starlets over whom Miss Smith maintains a "guardianship" are Baby Leroy, who is earning $50 a week, though only a year old; Jackie Cooper, whose salary is $1,300 a week, and Dickie Moore, all prolific box office draws.

LOANS ABOVE MILLION MARK

Applications in Columbus District Total $7,683,877 Appraised.

Passing the million dollar mark with a total of $1,218,224.39 in loans relieving the distress and anxiety of 346 home owners who had been facing foreclosure and possible eviction, the Home Owners Loan Corporation of Ohio is proudly demonstrating its importance as a part of the national reconstruction program. This is shown in the weekly report of business for the week ending Friday, just issued by State Manager Henry G. Brunner.

Of the above amount the report shows $1,111,900 issued in the Corporation's bonds, which were exchanged for the mortgages held by former mortgagees, and $106,324.39 paid out in cash for the settlement of back taxes and other necessary expenses in connection with the 346 loans.

In addition to the loans which have been completed, 52 others have been considered by the State Office and rejected on account of their failure to qualify for loans under the terms of the law.

The report gives total figures during the ten weeks of operation in Ohio as follows:

Columbus District: total applications for loans, 7,682, value $21,387,121; consent of mortgages to receive Corporation bonds, 5,606, value $16,114,785; completed appraisals, 5,877, value $6,932,403.

AUDITION TONIGHT

With nine entries to take part, an audition for amateur soloists will be held Wednesday evening at the Cliftona theater under the auspices of the Cussins & Fearn Co.

A medal is to be awarded the district winner tonight after judges, as yet unannounced, decide the winner. The victorious singer's name will be engraved on a medal next week. A dinner in honor of the district winner will be given at the Fort Hayes hotel, it has been announced.

Daughter of Sir Sidney Low, eminent British historian, Mme. Litvinoff married the Soviet statesman when he was an exile in London. Since his rise to power, following the revolution, Mme. to farmers aggregating $19,357,600, or more than a million dollars per working day, and figures for the twelve Federal Land Banks which have just been released show that the Louisville Bank is approving loans more rapidly than any other Bank in the system, according to announcement made today by Ernest Rice, President of the bank. Approvals for the first twenty days of October included $3,543,200, to the farmers of Tennessee, $6,960,600 to Kentucky farmers, $5,285,000, to Indiana, and $5,577,800 to Ohio.

A remarkable speeding up in loaning operations by the Louisville Bank is illustrated by the fact that more loans were approved in the first twenty days of October, than during the previous nine months of 1933. Loans approved for the year of 1933, to October 20, totaled $29,691,700, and were made to 15,930 farmers in Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio. Counting seven days a week and twenty-four hours per day, the Louisville Bank approved a loan each three and six-tenths minutes during the first twenty days of October.

Here we've read the "New Deal" for 31 years

That's why we have confidence that the Blue Eagle will bring direct results and help to everyone

Here are some Significant FACTS:

MANY of the fundamentals on which today's gigantic "New Deal" rests are the same as those on which J. C. Penney founded his association of stores in 1902.

That's one reason why we have faith that difficulties will be overcome, that objections from the "curbstone critics" will be silenced, that the courageous plan will succeed.

For many of these same difficulties were thirty-one years ago when he undertook the administration of today in applying to a Like all big ideas, the Penney plan was simple, experienced central buying staff. He'd made each sale... but a lot of sales. He'd share who helped him plan work out. He'd pay the living, not mere existence. He'd pool experience, keep operating costs down to rock bottom.

The savings he'd pass on to the public—would rest on better values.

Plain priced, sold for exactly what it was commonplace today. But in 1902 it was realistic! Many merchants called it.

The J. C. Penney "New Deal" worked Customers at first could hardly believe that honest values. But people who bought told their friends. The stores grew in number. Today there are nearly five hundred. T. benefits to millions of people, and to their lives show that Penney stores actually increased by offering wider selections and better values.

Because these simple fundamentals have one year in a great business venture, the J. C. Penney organization has faith that they will help a great nation restore national progress.

Tigers Travel To Westerville

Confronted by a team which should win the Central Buckeye league season in a tie with Bexley, Circleville's Tigers travel to Westerville, Friday, to meet the fast gridders of that town.

Bexley defeated Westerville, 7-6, in an early season game but since that has lost to Grandview. The Bexleyites will have to turn on to defeat Delaware Friday. Marysville and Grandview meet.

The team will leave this city at noon in a bus with the game scheduled for 3 p. m. Stoneham and Burghalter are to be the officials.

Westerville handed a sound thrashing to the Delaware team while Circleville lost to the Carlisle-coached outfit also by a lopsided score. To look at the dope from another angle, Westerville defeated Grandview only 3-0 with a field goal while the Tigers held the Grandview outfit to a 0-0 draw.

Gridiron Notes

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—The entire Yale squad was scheduled to work out today as the Bulldogs pushed preparations for the Dartmouth game Saturday. Jake Kilcullen, Jimmy De Angelis, Calaire Curtin and Stan Fuller, who were banged up somewhat in the Army game last week are reported to be fully recovered from their bruises. Head Coach Reggie Root is still undecided regarding his starting lineup for Saturday.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1.—Princeton's highly touted Tigers will probably present a slightly revamped lineup when they meet Brown at Providence this weekend. Bob Kopf will replace John Weller at left guard; Johnny Bliss will supplant Dick John at the other guard position and Paul Paulk will be at right half in place of Homer Spofford, a long workout on pass defense was scheduled today.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 1.—Harvard's coaching staff today was bemoaning the loss of Freddy Moseley, a 163 pound halfback from last year's freshman team. Moseley fractured a bone in his ankle and will be lost to the Crimson for the rest of the year. He was slated to see service in the Lehigh game here Saturday.

BEARCATS AND BISHOPS MEET

Delaware Scene of Important Contest In Buckeye Grid Association.

DELAWARE, Nov. 1.—Two teams, each with a conference victory, drilled on their home practice fields today for their game here Saturday, a game which will place one or the other in the running season's Buckeye Association title race.

The two teams, Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan, are in a triple tie with Ohio U. for association leadership.

While the game is being played here, Ohio U.'s Bobcats will probably be adding another victory to their credit at Springfield, where they will meet Wittenberg. The Springfield eleven has lost its three conference games and should prove little opposition to the Athens eleven.

Cincinnati boasts an unusually strong defensive machine, and has lost only one game and has had its goal line crossed only once this season.

Wesleyan also has lost only one game, but has been scored upon in every game except last week's against Denison, when the Bishops won 20 to 0. The two other Buckeye circuit teams have non-conference foes this week.

Extreme Southern Point
Cape Sable, Fla., is the southernmost point of continental United States. It is 49 miles farther south than the most southern point in Texas.

Made Potato Unpopular
The potato, when first introduced in Scotland, was regarded as the original fruit which caused all the trouble in the Garden of Eden and was denounced as such.

Tell Them So
We all love our families, but we don't tell them so often enough.—American Magazine.

BISHOP LINE VETERANS

BISHOP HUSKIES

Veteran linemen are plentiful at Ohio Wesleyan this year, no less than 11 lettermen being available for line positions. Herewith are seven of the veterans. They are Harlan Mills, Warren, who was the iron man of the Bishop team last year with 34 out of a possible 36 quarters; Dave Merrell, Ravenna; Eddie Pape, Elyria; and Robert Forsythe, Cambridge, all guards; Robert Smith, Marion, and Frank Sayers, Columbus, both tackles, and Jack McIlvain, Lakewood, center.

The Bishops meet Cincinnati next Saturday at Delaware in a game that will knock one or the other out of the triple tie now existing for first place in the Buckeye conference. It will be Ohio Wesleyan's homecoming attraction, as well as Migration Day for Cincinnati.

To Pilot Red Sox

Stanley "Bucky" Harris, who has been named as 1934 manager of the Boston Red Sox baseball team, to succeed Marty McManus. Harris resigned managership of the Detroit Tigers a few weeks before the season ended. He had piloted the automobile city team since 1923.

PEDEN & KERR ADVANCED FOR BUCKEYE POST

Illinois-Michigan Game To Be Week-end Feature; Star Ends In Big 10.

By LEO FISCHER
International News Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—While waiting for the week-end to come around with Minnesota-Northwestern, Illinois-Michigan, Chicago-Wisconsin and other contests which may settle Big Ten honors, here are a few items picked up here and there by our correspondent:

Chicago hasn't won a Big Ten game since Stag left, but the boys hope to break the ice for Clark Shaughnessy against Wisconsin Saturday.

Northwestern has improved faster than any team in the conference since its opening defeat by Iowa, regardless of the Ohio upset.

Bernie Bierman was ready to resign recently when his salary was cut, but he won't have to worry about the future with the Gophers drawing 54,000 crowds.

"ON OWN TERMS"

Noble Kizer may take the Notre Dame coaching job when, as and if offered to him—on his own terms.

If he does, Jimmy Phelan probably will break all records getting back to Lafayette from Portland, Ore.

Johnny Kabealo, Ohio's great punter, has his ups and downs. He runs an elevator in a Columbus department store for a couple of hours each afternoon before football practice.

Charley Bernard, Michigan's all-American venter, worked in a gas station in Detroit last year to earn enough money to stay in school. A rich Detroit used to call for him in Ann Arbor and return him there each night to save Bernard his face.

Rumors are that the actual attendance at the Michigan-Ohio game two weeks ago was more than 111,000. Wonder why the school held out that other 20,000 on the reporters?

The Big Ten has more stars at ends this season than at any other position. Ward and Petoskey, Michigan; Manske and Jens, Northwestern; Larson and Tanner, Minnesota; Antonini and Lyons, Indiana; Page and Dee, Iowa; Lowery and Duggins, Purdue; Harworth and Deanevich, Wisconsin; Gillman and Padlow, Ohio—these are just some of them.

Ohio's football squad was ready to walk out on strike Friday if a certain writer and broadcaster wasn't set down, but the players were pacified long enough to go out and have a game handed to them.

PEDEN OR KERR

Don Peden, now at Ohio U., or Andy Kerr, now at Colgate, may be Ohio State's next coach if Willaman gives up the battle.

Northwestern's line is the smallest in the Big Ten, but one of the tightest. Aside from big Bill Riley, it averages around 180, but it stopped Stanford, Ohio and Indiana cold.

Wally Cruice, Wildcat sophomore halfback, gained more ground from scrimmage Saturday than the entire Ohio team. His southpaw passing, however, has been a disappointment so far.

China Scores Again

Manuscripts dating back more than 1,000 years, recently found in China, show that mutual benefit societies were popular as early as the Ninth century, fines being levied for failure to bring in one's contributions of wheat and millet.

Questions and Answers

How may left-over fats or drippings be used?

Each kind of fat should be stored separately in a glass or other jar and kept in the refrigerator. Bacon drippings can be used for basting roast poultry and is good for sauteing raw potatoes or other vegetables. Beef drippings, because of its rich meaty flavor, is excellent in stuffings, in mashed potatoes and in frying liver and kidneys. It has been used for shortening in ginger, spice cakes or other highly flavored cakes and cookies. Chicken fat may be substituted for butter in any recipe calling for butter.

Leaf lard is good in making yeast and baking powder biscuits and may be used as a substitute for butter. Mutton fat or dripping has an objectionable taste and odor that can be removed by boiling in milk for five or ten minutes. Cool with the milk and then skim off, remelting and storing like other fats in a jar. It may be used in sauteing and in highly flavored spice cakes.

Why are chocolate or Devil's Food cake sometimes dry?

Chocolate or Devil's Food cake frequently becomes dry and cracks on top because of the use of too much chocolate. A square and a half of chocolate to 2½ cups of flour is considered the best proportion. Too little shortening or too much sugar makes a dry cake yet, too much of either will be disastrous. Some recipes suggest using ½ cup of hot, rice potatoes and the use of buttermilk for a liquid to keep the cake moist.

May a chicken bone be held in the fingers when eating the meat from it?

When a chicken bone such as a drumstick is "dressed up" in a paper frill, it is supposed to signify that the bone may be held by the frill while the meat is eaten from it; the rule being that a finger food shall not stain or grease the fingers. The use of the knife and fork is generally preferred. If the hostess is liberal enough to permit handling the bone, the guest should never go so far as to put the bone itself in her mouth.

Cocoanut Cookies

Sour cream cocoanut cookies are made easily because they are dropped from the spoon. It's an excellent manner in which to use cream that has soured, and the cookies are delicious.

1 C. brown sugar 2 C. flour
½ C. butter ½ tsp. soda
1 egg, beaten ½ tsp. soda
½ C. sour cream 2 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt 1 C. creamed coconut

Cream shortening and sugar together; add beaten egg. Sift together dry ingredients and add coconut. Combine dry ingredients into mixture alternately with cream. Mix well and drop by teaspoons on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees F. for 15 minutes.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul; skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely. But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name "Carter's Little Liver Pills" on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

choosing from Honor Roll students. The following were elected: Harold Norris, president; Donald Dean, vice president; Rosemary Renick, secretary; Lillie Margaret Wilson, treasurer; Virgil Beavers, Sargent at Arms; and Opal Belle Beavers, assistant.

The pupils from the Sophomore class that were on the honor roll for the first six weeks were: Esther Bennett, Georgia Keck, and Beatrice Parker.

Junior had 100 percent attendance last week.

The sales at our elder stand at the Halloween dance were large.

Several members of the Junior class took a trip through southern Ohio last Friday.

The Senior made a good profit at the Halloween dance from the check room, boxing and wrestling.

The Senior class rings were received Monday, Oct. 30. Everyone was well pleased with his ring. All the teachers attended the teachers meeting at Dayton, Oct. 27.

is that these men are trying to shake down fancy fees from officials of closed banks seeking government assistance to reopen. These men say they have "inside drag" and that without their participation bankers can't get action.

O'Connor says anyone interested in a bank, closed or open, and desirous of advice or assistance has only to ask O'Connor's office to get it. Not only that, but should one of the would-be fixers—all of whom are known to the Treasury—attempt to appear in the case, his client would be informed to return without him.

What aroused O'Connor to the talking point was the submission to him of confidential information that two New Yorkers had told businessmen in a southern town that for $25,000 they could "fix" it so that closed banks they were interested in would be reopened.

MASTER OF THE SKYWAYS

Dr. Hugo Eckener, master mariner of the skyways, provided these two fine character studies as he enjoyed his cigar at the reception in his honor held in Chicago following his arrival there on his great Graf Zeppelin. He said he regretted that unfavorable weather conditions made it necessary for his ship to leave before most of the city was awake.

The Eastern Shore burning was the twenty-first mob murder of a negro since January of this year. During the same period last year ten had occurred.

Thomas Buzzard has entered the 7th grade, transferring from the Harrison-twp school at Duval.

Another month has come and gone and a study of our attendance reports shows that we have not done quite as well as last month, our average being only 96 percent.

Grades one and two and the freshman class earned punctuality records with not any and one tardy cases respectively. The eighth grade and the sophomores led in attendance the former making 98.9 percent and the latter, 99.4 percent.

We had three new pupils enter and one withdraw during the month so our enrollment has increased by two.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was a cop in Chicago that heard an awful loud yelling on his beat at about three o'clock in the morning. He thought it was just another guy that was being taken for a ride, making a little objection, so he didn't interfere. But the guy that was hollering so loud gradually came around the corner towards where the cop was standing, and then the cop seen that it wasn't no ride the fellow was taking at all. He'd just come out of a speakeasy, and his face was purple from yelling, "Oh, John and Jerry! Come on here, John and Jerry!"

The cop says, "See here, you can't yell that way in this street at this time in the night. Some strangers are in town, and they want to sleep."

"Yeah, officer," the guy says, real friendly-like, "but them bums in the speakeasy was gettin' rough with me, and I was just calling my two brothers to come an' help me mop up the joint."

"All right, but don't holler so loud."

"But officer, I got to holler loud. My brothers are both in London."

Gridiron Notes

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—The entire Yale squad was scheduled to work out today as the Bulldogs pushed preparations for the Dartmouth game Saturday. Jake Kileullen, Jimmy De Angelis, Calaire Curtin and Stan Puller, who were banged up somewhat in the Army game last week are reported to be fully recovered from their bruises. Head Coach Reggie Root is still undecided regarding his starting lineup for Saturday.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1.—Princeton's highly touted Tigers will probably present a slightly revamped lineup when they meet Brown at Providence this weekend. Bob Kopf will replace John Weller at left guard; Johnny Bliss will supplant Dick John at the other guard position; and Paul Foulk will be at right half in place of Homer Spofford, a long workout on pass defense was scheduled today.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 1.—Harvard's coaching staff today was bemoaning the loss of Freddy Moseley, a 163 pound halfback from last year's freshman team. Moseley fractured a bone in his ankle and will be lost to the Crimson for the rest of the year. He was slated to see service in the Lehigh game here Saturday.

BEARCATS AND BISHOPS MEET

Delaware Scene of Important Contest In Buckeye Grid Association.

DELAWARE, Nov. 1.—Two teams, each with a conference victory, drilled on their home practice fields today for their game here Saturday, a game which will place one or the other in the running season's Buckeye Association title race.

The two teams, Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan, are in a triple tie with Ohio U. for association leadership. While the game is being played here, Ohio U.'s Bobcats will probably be adding another victory to their credit at Springfield, where they will meet Wittenberg. The Springfield eleven has lost its three conference games and should prove little opposition to the Athens eleven.

Cincinnati boasts an unusually strong defensive machine, and has lost only one game and has its goal line crossed only once this season.

Wesleyan also has lost only one game, but has been scored upon in every game except last week's against Denison, when the Bishops won 20 to 0. The two other Buckeye circuit teams have non-conference foes this week.

Extreme Southern Point Cape Sable, Fla., is the southernmost point of continental United States. It is 49 miles farther south than the most southern point in Texas.

Made Potato Unpopular The potato, when first introduced in Scotland, was regarded as the original fruit which caused all the trouble in the Garden of Eden and was denounced as such.

Tell Them So We all love our families, but we don't tell them so often enough.—American Magazine.

BISHOP LINE VETERANS

BISHOP HUSKIES

Veteran linemen are plentiful at Ohio Wesleyan this year, no less than 11 lettermen being available for line positions. Herewith are seven of the veterans. They are Harlan Mills, Warren, who was the iron man of the Bishop team last year with 34 out of a possible 36 quarters; Dave Merrill, Ravenna; Eddie Pape, Elyria; and Robert Forsythe, Cambridge, all guards; Robert Smith, Marion, and Frank Sayers, Columbus, both tackles, and Jack Melvin, Lakewood, center.

The Bishops meet Cincinnati next Saturday at Delaware in a game that will knock one or the other out of the triple tie now existing for first place in the Buckeye conference. It will be Ohio Wesleyan's homecoming attraction, as well as Migration Day for Cincinnati.

To Pilot Red Sox

Stanley "Bucky" Harris, who has been named as 1934 manager of the Boston Red Sox baseball team, to succeed Marty McManus. Harris assigned manager of the Detroit Tigers a few weeks before the season ended. He had piloted the automobile city team since 1928.

Illinois-Michigan Game To Be Week-end Feature; Stag Ends In Big 10.

By LEO FISCHER
International News Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—While waiting for the week-end to come around with Minnesota-Northwestern, Illinois-Michigan, Chicago-Wisconsin and other contests which may settle Big Ten honors, here are a few items picked up here and there by our correspondent:

Chicago hasn't won a Big Ten game since Stag left, but the boys hope to break the ice for Clark Shaughnessy against Wisconsin Saturday.

Northwestern has improved faster than any team in the conference since its opening defeat by Iowa, regardless of the Ohio upset.

Bernie Bierman was ready to resign recently when his salary was cut, but he won't have to worry about the future with the Gophers drawing 54,000 crowds.

"ON OWN TERMS"

Noble Kizer may take the Notre Dame coaching job when, as and if offered to him—on his own terms.

If he does, Jimmy Phelan probably will break all records getting back to Lafayette from Portland, Ore.

Johnny Kabealo, Ohio's great punter, has his ups and downs. He runs an elevator in a Columbus department store for a couple of hours each afternoon before football practice.

Charley Bernard, Michigan's all-American center, worked in a gas station in Detroit last year to earn enough money to stay in school. A rich Detroit used to call him in Ann Arbor and return him there each night to save Bernard his face.

Rumors are that the actual attendance at the Michigan-Ohio game two weeks ago was more than 111,000. Wonder why the school held out that other 20,000 on the reporters?

The Big Ten has more stars at ends this season than at any other position. Ward and Petoskey, Michigan; Manke and Lyons, Northwestern; Larson and Tamer, Minnesota; Antonini and Lyons, Indiana; Page and Dec, Iowa; Lowery and Duggins, Purdue; Haworth and Deanovich, Wisconsin; Gillman and Padlow, Ohio—those are just some of them.

Ohio's football squad was ready to walk out on strike Friday if a certain writer and broadcaster wasn't set down, but the players were pacified long enough to go out and have a game handed to them.

PEDEN OR KERR Don Peden, now at Ohio U., or Andy Kerr, now at Colgate, may be Ohio State's next coach if William gives up the battle.

Northwestern's line is the smallest in the Big Ten, but one of the tightest. Aside from Bill Riley, it averages around 180, but it stopped Stanford, Ohio and Indiana cold.

Wally Cruise, Wildcat sophomore halfback, gained more ground from scrimmage Saturday than the entire Ohio team. His southpaw passing, however, has been a disappointment so far.

China Scores Again Manuscripts dating back more than 1,000 years, recently found in China, show that mutual benefit societies were popular as early as the Ninth century, fines being levied for failure to bring in one's contributions of wheat and millet.

Questions and Answers

How may left-over fats or drippings be used?

Each kind of fat should be stored separately in a glass or other jar and kept in the refrigerator. Bacon drippings can be used for basting roast poultry and is good for sauteing raw potatoes or other vegetables. Beef drippings, because of its rich meaty flavor, is excellent in stuffings, in mashed potatoes and in frying liver and kidneys. It has been used for shortening in ginger, spice cakes or other highly flavored cakes and cookies. Chicken fat may be substituted for butter in any recipe calling for butter.

Leaf lard is good in making yeast and baking powder biscuits and may be used as a substitute for butter. Mutton fat or dripping has an objectionable taste and odor that can be removed by boiling it in milk for five or ten minutes. Cool with the milk and then skim off, remelting and storing like other fats in a jar. It may be used in sauteing and in highly flavored spice cakes.

Why are chocolate or Devil's Food cake sometimes dry?

Chocolate or Devil's Food cake frequently becomes dry and cracks on top because of the use of too much chocolate. A square and a half of chocolate to 2½ cups of flour is considered the best proportion. Too little shortening, or too much sugar makes a dry cake yet, too much of either will be disastrous. Some recipes suggest using ½ cup of hot, ricied potatoes and the use of buttermilk for a liquid to keep the cake moist.

May a chicken bone be held in the fingers when eating the meat from it?

When a chicken bone such as a drumstick is "dressed up" in a paper frill, it is supposed to signify that the bone may be held by the frill while the meat is eaten from it; the rule being that a finger food shall not stain or grease the fingers. The use of the knife and fork is generally preferred. If the hostess is liberal enough to permit handling the bone, the guest should never go so far as to put the bone itself in her mouth.

Cocoanut Cookies

Sour cream cocoanut cookies are made easily because they are dropped from the spoon. It's an excellent manner in which to use cream that has soured, and the cookies are delicious.

1 C. brown sugar 2 C. flour
½ C. butter ½ tsp. nutmeg
1 egg, beaten ½ tsp. soda
1 C. sour cream 2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt 1 C. grated cocoanut

Cream shortening and sugar together; add beaten egg. Sift together dry ingredients and add cocoanut. Combine dry ingredients into mixture alternately with cream. Mix well and drop by teaspoons on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees F. for 15 minutes.

City Charters

In some states a number of different charters have been framed by the legislatures and cities are permitted a choice of these. In other states each city of a certain class is permitted to frame its own charter, which, when it is approved by the voters, goes into effect, provided it does not conflict with its state laws or constitution. In a few states the legislatures specify the charter form for cities of various classes.

is that these men are trying to shake down fancy fees from officials of closed banks seeking government assistance to reopen. These men say they have "inside drag" and that without their participation bankers can't get action.

O'Connor says anyone interested in a bank, closed or open, and desirous of advice or assistance has only to ask O'Connor's office to get it. Not only that, but should one of whom are known to the Treasury attempt to appear in the case, his client would be informed to return without him.

What aroused O'Connor to the talking point was the submission to him of confidential information that two New Yorkers had told businessmen in a southern town that for $25,000 they could "fix" it so that closed banks they were interested in would be reopened.

THERE was a cop in that heard a awful howling on his beat at about o'clock in the morning. He thought it was just another guy being taken for a ride, and a little objection, so he didn't interfere. But the guy that was being taken for a ride was so loud gradually came to the corner towards where the cop was standing, and then the cop thought it wasn't no ride the guy was taking at all. He'd just come out of a speakeasy, and he was purple from yelling. "Oh, John and Jerry! Come on here, John and Jerry!"

The cop says, "See here, I can't yell that way in this town at this time in the night. Some strangers are in town, and they want to sleep."

"Yeah, officer," the guy says, real friendly-like, "but them boys in the speakeasy was pettin' rough with me, and I was just calling my two brothers to come an' help me mop up the joint."

"All right, but don't holler so loud."

"But officer, I got to holler loud. My brothers are both in London."

City Charters

In some states a number of different charters have been framed by the legislatures and cities are permitted a choice of these. In other states each city of a certain class is permitted to frame its own charter, which, when it is approved by the voters, goes into effect, provided it does not conflict with its state laws or constitution. In a few states the legislatures specify the charter form for cities of various classes.
